

Southern Connecticut Conference

A Historical Timeline

Summer 1991 – A committee of five superintendents, led by chairman and Wallingford superintendent Joe Cirusuolo, begin to explore the possibility of a forming a super conference in the New Haven area. Members of the committee included John Onofrio (West Haven), Dave Shaw (Hamden), Steve Gordon (Bethany-Orange-Woodbridge) and Gene Coppola (Seymour). The impetus for these discussions was the plight of four area high schools who were forced to travel substantial distances in order to have a full sports schedule. Other concerns were raised including the changing size of student enrollment in area high schools and racial/ethnic isolation.

November 19, 1991 – The All Connecticut Conference is reduced to six schools after East Catholic of Manchester decides to leave the league at the conclusion of the 1991-92 school year.

March 10, 1992 – A meeting was held at Carrigan Middle School in West Haven with area superintendents to discuss a proposal for a super conference. Thirty-two high schools were contacted about potential interest.

October 1992 – Jim Benanto, athletic director at Shelton High School, agrees to chair a Planning Group to develop proposals about the mega conference, specifically divisional formats.

January 19, 1993 – Twenty-seven schools attend a meeting hosted by Peter Young, executive director of ACES, with the purpose of reviewing proposals for the mega conference.

May 13, 1993 – Twenty-one schools attend a meeting, led by Shelton athletic director Jim Benanto, to discuss and finalize proposal of a mega conference to area superintendents and principals. The conference would be divided into three divisions and three different scheduling formats are proposed for sponsored sports. The consensus philosophy for scheduling in this mega conference is developed – creating fair, equitable and complete schedules – for all member schools.

October 5, 1993 – A working meeting is held at ACES to formulate three working committees – constitution, scheduling and non-athletic concerns – for the new regional athletic conference.

October 7, 1993 – Seymour is officially invited to join the Naugatuck Valley League making it the only existing Housatonic League school not to move to the new mega conference.

October 21, 1993 – The still unnamed mega conference holds a meeting to compile schedules for the 1994 fall sports season.

January 10, 1994 – A meeting is held at Cheshire High School with athletic directors and head coaches of the fall and spring sports to introduce the new league and schedules for the upcoming 1994-95 season.

February 3, 1994 – The Southern Connecticut Conference is officially founded with twenty member schools. All twenty schools reaffirm commitment to the new conference with a letter to Peter Young, the executive director of ACES. Nine members of the Housatonic League, five members from the All-Connecticut Conference, four from the District League and two from the Shoreline Conference, make up the 20. A committee, chaired by East Haven principal Norman DeMartino and Wilbur Cross principal Thomas Ragozzino, complete and issue the league's Constitution and By-Laws.

May 5, 1994 – At a press conference at ACES in Hamden, Sal Cavallaro, a former principal, is introduced as the league's first Executive Secretary. Branford principal Dr. Ed Higgins was named as the first president of the league. Dr. Tom Neagle (Notre Dame principal) is named Secretary, while Sheehan athletic director John Novakowski is voted as treasurer.

June 23, 1994 – The new conference holds its first official Athletic Directors meeting at ACES. The meeting is chaired by Branford's co-athletic directors Sav Synodi and Jake Palluzzi. At this meeting, the group decides on the names of the three divisions – Hammonasset, Housatonic and Quinnipiac – symbolizing three Native American rivers in the New Haven County.
